CELEBRATING 30 YEARS OF MUSIC

"Still Yours" celebrates the kind of connection that grows stronger with time. Its inspiration is the couple who have seen each other through life's changes and continue to choose each other. Written by twin brothers Nelson and Wayne Braxton and produced by Nelson, the new single arrives as The Braxton Brothers approach 30 years since their recording debut.

Radio was part of their lives long before they heard themselves on it. Their father was a Bay Area mobile DJ, and the brothers grew up surrounded by his records. Years later, they began sending their own recordings to local stations, hoping for feedback. San Francisco's KKSF did more than respond: it put "When Love Comes Around" on the air. That early exposure helped lead to their first record deal.

Their debut album, Steppin' Out, arrived in December 1996, introducing listeners to "Sunset Bay" and a distinctive musical partnership: Nelson's six-string bass sharing the melody with Wayne's saxophone. Across a catalog of six studio albums and subsequent singles, the brothers have continued to find new listeners. In 2022, "Catalina Nights" reached No. 1 on Billboard's Smooth Jazz Airplay chart.

For longtime listeners, "Still Yours" carries an extra resonance. Alongside its promise of lasting love is a nod to the smooth jazz family that has been with the brothers through those records, radio spins and live shows. The Braxton Brothers enter their 30th anniversary year with "Still Yours," a newly redesigned website, and planning underway for 2027 live appearances.
